STANLEY SECURITY SOLUTIONS
ANNOUNCES FORMATION OF GOVERNMENT PROGRAMS TEAM

Group to Provide Integrated Physical Security Systems and Services to Protect Government Facilities, Infrastructure, Assets and People

Orlando, FL., (ASIS) – September 12, 2005 – Stanley Security Solutions, Inc., a leading provider of access control and security solutions, announces the formation of its Government Programs Team. The group will provide complete life-cycle support on electronic security and mechanical access systems and equipment—from security analysis, engineering and installation design, through installation, maintenance and operation—for Stanley Security Solutions' expanding government market client base, and drive and support future growth in this key market segment.

The Government Programs Team is led by Mike Mostow, who recently joined Stanley Security Solutions from Johnson Controls, Inc., where he was responsible for developing and directing its federal market integrated security systems business.

The group includes experts on virtually every commercially available electronic security and mechanical access technology on the market today and provides government a unique and deep access to the full spectrum of engineering and technical support resources. The Government Programs Team will leverage the individual competencies, resources and contracts within Stanley Security Solutions' existing product and services portfolio.

“Formation of the Government Programs Team addresses the growing demand for a national physical security solution provider that understands the unique and complex challenges that exist in today’s government security market environment, said Mike Mostow, director, government programs, Stanley Security Solutions.”
